V4N9

September 2006

Welcome to the V4N9 September 2006 issue of the Awareness Watch™ Newsletter. This newsletter is available as a complimentary subscription and will be issued monthly. Each newsletter will feature the following:

Awareness Watch™ Featured Report
Awareness Watch™ Spotters
Awareness Watch™ Book/Paper/Article Review
Subject Tracer™ Information Blogs

I am always open to feedback from readers so please feel free to email with all suggestions, reviews and new resources that you feel would be appropriate for inclusion in an upcoming issue of Awareness Watch™. This is an ongoing work of creativity and you will be observing constant changes, constant updates knowing that “change” is the only thing that will remain constant!!

Awareness Watch™ Featured Report

This month's featured report will be highlighting Research Resources on the Internet. These resources are constantly updated on the Research Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog available at the following URL:

<http://www.ResearchResources.info/>

Finding the appropriate and critical research resources on the Internet is one of the most important tasks a researcher can accomplish and this September 2006 Awareness Watch Featured Report list many of these free and fee based resources for research available on the Internet. These resources are constantly being updated so it would be wise to bookmark this resource and return on a regular basis.

Clipart ETC

<http://etc.usf.edu/clipart/>

Free clipart for students & teachers with over 14,000 pieces of free clipart and growing! This site offers quality educational clipart. Every item comes with a choice of image size and format as well as complete source information for proper citations in school projects. No advertisement-filled pages with pop-up windows or inappropriate links here. A friendly license allows teachers and students to use up to 50 items in a single, non-commercial project without further permission. This has been added to Student Research Subject Tracer™ Information Blog.

eSnips - Social Content Sharing

<http://www.esnips.com/>

eSnips is a social content-sharing site, where you can publish and share any media type. You have practically unlimited flexibility in choosing what you want to share, and with whom, in 1GB of free space. eSnips is the one place where you can share anything you want, about any topic: your thoughts, your photos, your music, your videos, your flash files, stuff you find on the web, and many other media types. Once you create different folders for each of your passions and interests, you decide what files to put in each folder, and you control who is allowed to view each folder – just you, a select group, or the world. Browse around a bit, with eSnips you can discover new content and people who share your interests. This has been added to Social Informatics Subject Tracer™ Information Blog.

ShopWiki

<http://www.shopwiki.com/>

ShopWiki is a shopping search engine that indexes retail products from thousands of online merchants. ShopWiki is not a store and does not sell anything. The purpose of the site is to help consumers find the products they are looking for online with ease. ShopWiki actively crawls more than 120,000 stores to ensure you find the best product and price available. However, their crawlers periodically scan the Internet, searching more than 300,000 Web sites, to find more stores and to ensure they only show results from true retail outlets. This has been added to ShoppingBots Subject Tracer™ Information Blog.

ClipShack - Sharing and Playing Videos

<http://www.clipshack.com/>

Diigo - Social Annotation and Social Bookmarking

<http://www.diigo.com/>

Diigo (dee'go) is about "Social Annotation". By combining social bookmarking, clippings, in situ annotation, tagging, full-text search, easy sharing and interactions, Diigo offers a powerful personal tool and a rich social platform for knowledge users, and in the process, turns the entire web into a writable, participatory and interactive media. The social annotation service introduced by Diigo allows users to add highlights and sticky notes, in situ, on any web page they read. Imagine a giant transparency overlaying on top of all the web pages. Users can write on the transparency as they wish, as private notes or public comments. And they can read public comments on the transparency left by other readers of the same page, and hear their "two cents" and interact with them. Swarm - A New Way To Browse the Web and Find the Most Interesting Sites

<http://www.swarmthe.com/>

Swarm shows you what websites people are visiting, right now. Swarm is a graphical map of hundreds of websites, all connecting to each other. It updates itself every second with where people are going and coming from. As sites become more popular, they move towards the center of the swarm. Website traffic is symbolized with thin lines. Each time you see a line appear, it means someone has moved from one site to the other. You can gauge how many people are swarming around based on the number of lines. Swarm is a useful tool for browsing the web, not searching it. You need to visit the site with an open mind and you may find some really cool stuff. Google Web Toolkit (GWT)

<http://code.google.com/webtoolkit/>

Google Web Toolkit (GWT) is a Java software development framework that makes writing AJAX applications like Google Maps and Gmail easy for developers who don't speak browser quirks as a second language. Writing dynamic web applications today is a tedious and error-prone process; you spend 90% of your time working around subtle incompatibilities between web browsers and platforms, and JavaScript's lack of modularity makes sharing, testing, and reusing AJAX components difficult and fragile. GWT lets you avoid many of these headaches while offering your users the same dynamic, standards-compliant experience. You write your front end in the Java programming language, and the GWT compiler converts your Java classes to browser-compliant JavaScript and HTML. Text Pattern - Content Management System

<http://www.textpattern.com/>

A free, flexible, elegant, easy-to-use content management system for all kinds of websites, even weblogs. Built into Textpattern is Textile, a simple syntax for nudging plain text into structurally sound and stylistically rich web content. Ordinarily fussy text amendments such as headers, hyperlinks, image tags and tables are created with one or two simple markers. Compared to navigating the tag soup of markup, writing and revising with Textile is much more intuitive, being closer to working with ordinary text. Once you're ready to publish, copy marked up with Textile is automatically converted to valid XHTML, and because Textpattern stores both versions of each article, revising and updating is a snap. When composing or readying articles for publication in Textpattern, you can switch between three views of the article: plain text, XHTML (the code with which a web browser renders the article), and a rendered preview. This has been added to World Wide Web Reference Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog.

Complore - Come Xplore

<http://www.complore.com/>

Complore is derived from com-(with,together) and explore-(search, research).As the name suggests, complore is a vision to connect people from diverse backgrounds, from traditional research areas such as the sciences and engineering to non-traditional fields such as theater and music, through collaboration and networking and provide them a common platform to collectively explore their areas of interest. Thus complore provides people to think and work as a team. Complore also provides students, faculty, technical experts and outstanding scholars an opportunity to work in professional collaboration with each other with a stimulating level of scholarship, research, and intellectual engagement that immeasurably enriches their experience. It also provides a common space for students to consider and comment on each and every one's research materials including their own. By exchanging and building upon each others' ideas, students are encouraged to work and learn together. Fundable

<http://www.fundable.org/>

Fundable.org lets groups of people pool funds to make purchases or raise money. Similar to online auctions, Fundable's pages, called "group actions," are created by people who use this site. Each group action has a description of how much money needs to be collected and what it will do. Once enough pledges (not payments) have been collected, Fundable turns them into real payments and sends the total to the group action's organizer. No one takes a risk when making a pledge: if a group action expires before reaching its total in pledges, Fundable deletes all pledges and never charges money. This lets you participate in a group purchase. This has been added to Auction Resources Subject Tracer™ Information Blog. podOmatic Podcast Portal: Create, Find, Share Podcast

<http://www.podomatic.com/>

PodOmatic specializes in the creation of sophisticated tools and services that enable anyone to easily find, create, distribute, promote and listen to both audio and video podcasts. The premiere destination for veteran and novice podcast creators and consumers, PodOmatic is the largest and most widely used service for creating and hosting podcasts. Not since blogging has a technology seemed to come out of nowhere and been so widely adopted as podcasting. Roughly 4.8 million people downloaded a podcast in 2005 - compared to just over 800,000 the previous year. Despite this incredible growth, many would-be-podcasters face an array of technical challenges or must purchase complicated audio equipment or recording software before getting started. Until these challenges can be overcome, market adoption of podcasting will remain slow and limited to the crafty, tech-savvy and patient. Strategies for Developing Sustainable Open Access Scholarly Journals by David J. Solomon

http://firstmonday.org/issues/issue11_6/solomon/index.html

Abstract:

This paper discusses different forms of open access publishing and argues that small independent journals that are funded through subsidies provide an important niche in scholarly publishing. One such journal, Medical Education Online (MEO) is used as a case study characterizing the dilemma these journals can face in maintaining their operations as they become successful and their need for resources grows. The paper discusses several strategies for addressing this problem and how they have been implemented for MEO.
