

Bots, Blogs & News Aggregators

A White Paper Link Compilation

By

Marcus P. Zillman, M.S., A.M.H.A.
Executive Director – Virtual Private Library
zillman@virtualprivatelibrary.com

My latest keynote presentation discusses the convergence of bots, blogs and news aggregators. In my previous columns and newsletters I have discussed the many facets of bots and intelligent agents and my experiences with blogging and aggregating the news on the Internet. My latest presentation has been created by using the relationships between bots, blogs and news aggregators from my years of personal experience and my latest creations of Subject Tracer™ Information Blogs. The below URL gives the latest resources from my presentation titled Bots, Blogs & News Aggregators:

Search Engines (Bots), Answer Engines and Subject Trees:

Search engines, answer engines and subject trees on the Internet allow for the partial discovery of current and archival current awareness information. There are literally tens of thousands of search engines and subject trees but a handful represent the best and most competent for the professional/executive:

BLOGS:

Web Logs or “blogs” have become quite the talking point on and off the Internet. My column of July 2001 “WebLog: To Blog or Not to Blog” alerted everyone that the Blogging Revolution was about to happen and so it has. The Internet can now be interactive with everyone publishing their personal blog and now corporations are creating their own intranet blogs to disseminate information to their staff. The Internet is quickly becoming a personal publishing tool and you can begin creating your own blog immediately and have it on the Internet in a matter of minutes! Also the price is right...using the web application of blogger.com you will be able to create, publish and maintain your blog absolutely free!! My personal bookmarks created from my browsing as well as my bots has grown exponentially in the area of blogs. In 1999 I might have listed 10 to 15 while currently in 2005 I literally have thousands of various niched based blog resources.....absolutely amazing!

I will list some resources that you can use to make you an “instant” blogger as well as resources to find information using blogs as a resource:

News Aggregators:

News aggregators on the Internet have just recently become a very “hot” subject. With the advent of blogs as well as thousands of “live” news feeds on the Internet, a number of new software resources have been created to view these news feeds through a downloadable reader. These “viewers” not only allow you to observe these live streams of news and blogs but also allow you to search and aggregate the findings thus creating an easy to use resource that keeps the important information at your finger tips.

All of this information is available through the use of RSS and ATOM feeds that have become extremely popular. Some excellent tutorials on Blogs, RSS and News Aggregators are available at the following URLs:

Then of course the most important area is to find the best “news aggregator” for you so you may begin the journey into cyberspace finding and aggregating your subject of interest news directly to your desktop! The viewers are available based upon the operating system of your computer as well as many are absolutely free or if fee based are relatively inexpensive for the results that can be achieved!

The final area for your knowledge discovery into News Aggregators is the ability to search for the latest news that you are interested in or your special interest and to place this news in your aggregator. There are a number of news aggregator RSS search tools (bots) on the Internet that have been created in the last several months and more being developed each day! Some of these RSS search engine feed bots are:
